REPORT No. 1 OF THE BOARD OF EDUCATION.

The following Report of the President of Centenary College of Louisiana is submitted:

The 1912-13 session of Centenary College closed successfully in June. All financial obligations were met through the careful management and untiring personal efforts of the President as well as through the co-operation of the Trustees. Seven young men were graduated, three of these being preachers.

The resignation of Dr. Felix R. Hill, who had accepted the presidency of the school at a critical period, became effective at this time, and in obedience to the call of the Trustees and in obedience to what I believed to be God's will, I entered at once upon my new duties. During the vacation period I canvassed for students and familiarized myself as much as possible with the details of the tasks of the approaching session.

During the first term of the present session seventy students have thus far been enrolled, sixty-three men and boys, seven girls and young women. Of these thirty-four are doing college work proper, and thirty-six preparatory work graded down at present through five years. Lower grades than these were admitted last session, which, if admitted, would have increased the revenue and enrollment somewhat. Five of this number at present are ministers, others being expected to enter for the second term; eleven are children of preachers. A number are paying their way entirely or in part by work. The college will probably succeed in collecting cash tuition during the first term from forty-three students. Forty students are boarding in the dormitory.

It cannot take less than eleven thousand dollars to maintain the school during the present session, though it is being operated on as economical a basis as possible. The regular income is far from being sufficient. I estimate that at least three thousand additional is needed and will have to be supplied in some way. Last year the Trustees appropriated twelve hundred dollars from its tax fund and the President collected sixteen hundred dollars by personal solicitation.

The question of the maintenance of the school this session is only an incident of a much greater problem, which must be faced without delay, and that is, the enlargement of our facilities and the creation of an endowment. I shall frankly state some facts which do not imply discouragement on my part, but simply an earnest desire that the situation be understood.

Notwithstanding the fact that we have a charter authorizing us to give college degrees, that our curriculum is fully up to the standard and that we are doing the full college work which we profess, yet it is impossible for us to be classified as a college under the conditions laid down by our educational commission-namely, a permanent annual income outside tuition fees of not less than $5,000, and seven professors giving all their time to college work. In addition to present resources it would require an investment of $50,000 at 6 per cent to produce this minimum.

The voluntary tax which was assumed by the citizens of Shreveport for a term of ten years, has been paying off the balance of indebtedness on our building, keeping up necessary repairs and insurance and contributing to the maintenance when necessary. This tax will expire in three years, by which time the debt should be liquidated. This tax could likely be renewed for another term of years, if, in the meantime, the college should show marked signs of expansion; but otherwise it would be impossible, as even now citizens who paid the tax in the beginning with enthusiastic interest now do so with a measure of reluctance because of their disappointment in the progress of the enterprise. When the tax ceases some substitute must be found for it.

In addition to the need for increased endowment there is urgent need for an administration building, leaving the present building for use as a dormitory, cottages for the professors, a means of separating the preparatory department from the college proper, and money for library and scientific department.

It seems to me absolutely imperative that a great forward movement in our educational work should be launched at this Conference. It should be done with a definite aim and method, and should be born of prayer.

I respectfully ask the Board to make as large an appropriation for the maintenance of Centenary College this session as is by any means possible without injustice to other educational interests.

I believe that if something is done to arouse new confidence and enthusiasm.

there will be no difficulty in largely increasing the number of students.

I must add a word in reference to the religious interests of the College. Advance is being made in this direction. The Y. M. C. A. is flourishing, having enrolled all but three of the old students, and there is prospect of revival in the student body. Three representatives of the College will attend the Student Volunteer Convention in Kansas City. (Signed) R. H. WYNN.

BOARD OF TRUSTEES REPORT.

The following report of the Board of Trustees of Centenary College of Louisiana is submitted:

Since our last annual report one session of the College has closed and another has opened. During the session that closed last June Dr. F. R. Hill tendered his resignation as President of the College to take effect at the close of the session. This the Board reluctantly accepted. After much deliberation on the part of the members of the Board, Rev. R. H. Wynn, D. D., of your body was unanimously chosen to succeed Dr. Hill. Dr. Wynn entered upon his duties at the close of the session. The Board feels fully justified in the wisdom of its choice.

The College is now in the midst of what promises to be its most successful session since its removal to Shreveport. For further particulars concerning the interior workings of the College we would refer you to the report of the President of the institution.

The Board regrets that the hope expressed in several previous reports for the larger and more adequate equipment of the College is still deferred. The Dormitory and Boarding Department and class room work all being under one roof greatly hampers the work of the institution.

While we as your servants come to you with a pardonable pride in the success of the College, at the same time we come with grave anxiety for the future. We can no longer maintain our own self-respect if we lag in this day of aggressive movements in Christian Education in every part of our Church.

The Board at its session in June took steps toward securing the services of a man who has been remarkably successful in raising funds for Methodist institutions of learning, to act as Financial Agent for the College. We are sorry to report a failure in this direction and mention it as indicative of what the Board feels as a necessity.

We beg to call your attention to the fact that the voluntary tax, which has only two more years to run will be largely consumed in paying the debt on the College and meeting needed repairs. This will leave us with practically no resources beyond the returns from a very limited endowment, the Conference assessment, and the income from tuition, etc.

A larger equipment and a largely increased endowment are an imperative necessity.

Our receipts to October 31, 1913, from the voluntary taxes paid by certain citizens of Shreveport are $28,282. Your Board of Trustees would urge that immediate steps be taken by your body toward launching a campaign for the purpose of raising at least two hundred thousand dollars for Century College and pledge our hearty co-operation to any plan which you may in your wisdom devise.

At its last meeting the Board elected Rev. W. W. Holmes, Rev. F. R. Hill, Dr. J. L. Scales and Mr. J. M. Davis to fill vacancies in the Board subject to your ratification. (Signed) PAUL M. BROWN, Chairman.

REPORT OF MANSFIELD COLLEGE.

R. E. Bobbitt, President of Mansfield College, reports that he has collected $6,214 during first term, and has expended $5,873; that finances are in good shape; that many needed improvements have been made, and that they have an enrollment of 149, of whom 35 are in the College proper. Report of Board of Church Extension.—P. H. Fontaine presented the report of the Board of Church Extension, which was adopted as follows:

REPORT OF THE BOARD OF CHURCH EXTENSION.

Your Board of Church Extension in presenting their Annual Report recognize the institution of which it is a part as one of the greatest factors in our propagation of the gospel of Christ. Houses of worship must be provided for our congregations and dwellings for our preachers. The society with a commodious, comfortable and well furnished church building and parsonage is in far better condition for service than the one that lacks these necessary things.

The Board of Church Extension was organized for the purpose of furnishing aid in building churches and parsonages and has been wonderfully successful in accomplishing its purpose. The collections for the present year showed an increase of $448 over last year, and, while this is gratifying, we have collected only 49.6 per cent of our Assessment.

We have requests for aid for twice the amount we are able to grant.

Last year in our report to the Conference we called attention to the loan fund and the birthday jars furnished free by the General Board to be placed in the Sunday school for the purpose of assisting in the collection of this fund. We request all our preachers and Sunday school superintendents to have these jars placed in the various Sunday Schools so that our children may be taught the importance of Church Extension while assisting in the increase of this fund.

We have at present a conference loan fund to which we expect to add from vear to year.

We request our preachers to ask for loans instead of donation funds as far as possible so that our funds may perpetually grow instead of being ended in one church or parsonage.

Dr. McMurry by his splendid address at our anniversary and his kindly advice at our business meetings greatly encouraged us in our work.

Rev. J. D. Harper, our able president, was authorized to appoint a man to represent us in every district conference in the Annual Conference.

W. W. Drake presented the Report of the Board of Missions, which was adopted as follows:

REPORT OF THE BOARD OF MISSIONS.

Your Board of Missions having had under consideration communications from the General Board, and having studied the needs and possibilities of our Conference field, beg leave to submit the following report: From the General Board there comes cheering news of growing missionary interest at home and encouraging progress abroad. In spite of serious hindrances in Mexico and Korea there has been encouraging increase in all our foreign fields. A record of 30 new missionaries and over $60,000 spent in building and equipment last year indicates some progress. One of the inspiring features of our work abroad is the opening of our African missions in the Belgian Congo. This mission is the outcome of much prayer, thought and devotion on the part of our leaders, especially Bishop Lambuth. Our own Conference has a peculiar and sacred interest in this venture of the faith of the church from the fact that two of our own consecrated young people at Lake Charles, Mr. and Mrs. J. A. Stockwell are members of the pioneer force in this new field.

Another notable feature of the year's work is the record of the second general missionary Conference held last summer at the Southern Assembly Grounds. Inspiring in every feature it reached a climax in the great offering of more than $150,000, with which the Conference closed. About $125,000 is available for the special building and equipment fund that the Board had determined to raise to meet the pressing demands of our expanding work in all fields.

Our own Conference field presents many opportunities and serious problems. We have in our territory one of the largest cities in the South. There are great stretches of territory where we might develop works, but our churches in the city are scarcely able to maintain themselves and your Mission Board has not been able to supply the need. We have the problem of the country church, which as a Conference we ought to study carefully.

One of the great opportunities of our Conference is found in the large French population of the Southern part of our State, which has been proved increasingly accessible to our gospel.

More, and more the tide of immigration is coming into our territory and we must lay plans to meet its needs.

Reviewing the work of the year, we are convinced that our appropriations have generally brought excellent returns.

Perhaps the greatest problems before us is the securing of the means for carrying forward the work. The General Board reports that the means for carrying on our general missionary work are dependent largely upon specials, as the assessments even in full would not meet the demands of our present work, regardless of advance. It is humiliating to know that while some conferences are giving magnified specials, we have not raised half of our assessments. This shortage involves a serious problem for your Board of Missions. Last year in order to meet imperative demands, which included about a thousand dollars for our French work, the Board authorized the Conference Secretary to raise a French Mission Special of $500, which was raised almost in full without prejudicing other claims. At our present session the demands of our mission fields for the coming year, which include nearly $1,000 for our French work, called for $1,000 more than we had in hand; and after earnest consideration of the question and consultation with the presiding elders, it has been determined to authorize the Conference Secretary to raise a special of $1,000 in which the Board asks the co-operation of the entire Conference.

It is important to the future of our work that we raise our assessments in full. In order to accomplish it we must educate our ministry and membership in the facts of missionary work. The Sunday School Missionary Department, the Epworth League and the Woman's Missionary Society are educative forces which we cannot neglect. The missionary sermon and prayer meeting ought to be more persistently used, and the excellent supply of missionary literature which the Board furnishes, including the Missionary Voice should be put into the hands of all our membership. Such a campaign of education can only be carried on by the co-operation of presiding elders, pastors and lay leaders in institutes and rallies that will bring missionary obligation before the people.

In addition to this plan of education, we would emphasize the method provided by the Church for the raising of our assessments by an every-member canvass of each church, combined with the duplex envelope system for the collection of the regular offerings

We agree with the attitude of the General Board in opposing the practice of the Sunday schools being called upon to carry the regular assessment of the church. The offering of the Sunday schools should be directed to some special approved by the General Board or Conference Board.

We rejoice in the growing success of the Woman's Missionary Society, and commend it to all the women of the Church. We desire to see the Laymen's Missionary Movement more fully used in our Conference, and ask for the co-operation of presiding elders and pastors as well as this Board in its development. We recommend the appointment of Mr. W. S. Holmes, of Baton Rouge, as Conference Leader. We recommend the appointment of Rev. W. W. Drake as Conference Secretary, and authorize him to appoint District Secretaries to assist him in the several Districts.

We have appointed W. W. Drake, W. H. Coleman and P. O. Lowrey as a committee to study the problem of the rural church and to devise plans for increasing the efficiency of our country work.

We have received from the Auditing Board for Foreign Missions $4,854; for Home and Conference Missions $6,055. Of the latter amount $1,380 belongs to the Home Department of the General Board, leaving $4,675 for work in the Conference. We have also received about $450 on the French Missionary Special, which has been used on this year's work. We have appropriated the following amounts: Alexandria District— Natchitoches ......$500.00 Melville ..... Baton Rouge District-Denham Springs ...... $100.00 Mt. Bishop Candler resumed the chair.

Committee on Memoirs.—The Report of the Committee on Memoirs was presented by P. O. Lowrey as follows, and adopted:

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE ON MEMOIRS.

The memoir of Dr. C. W. Carter, as read Sunday evening by F. S. Parker, we submit for your adoption.

We ask that Dr. F. R. Hill be authorized to prepare for publication in the Annual a memoir of Mr. S. B. McCutchen; and one of Mrs. R. J. Harp; that S. S. Holladay, be authorized to prepare a memoir of Mrs. H. J. Boltz, that Dr. Thomas Carter be authorized to prepare a memoir of Mrs. R. W. Tucker and that P. O. Lowrey be authorized to prepare a memoir of Mrs. B. T. Crews. (For memoirs see Appendix, p. 52.)

Contribution Taken .- A contribution, amounting to $30 was made in order to defray the extra expense of printing the memoir of Dr. Carter as read Sunday evening.

A. S. Lutz presented the Report of the Sunday School Board, which was adopted as follows:

REPORT OF THE SUNDAY SCHOOL BOARD.

We rejoice that we are living in the Sunday School era of the Church's history. No doubt is now expressed concerning the wise forethought of the men of previous years. We are now reaping the benefits of their abundant sowing. Faithful work in the Sunday School has marshalled an ever increasing army of volunteer workers to stand ready to go forth unto the uttermost parts of the earth in the spread of the kingdom of God. This spells opportunity, hence it is no time to retrench, but to advance.

Our attention has been called to the two paramount questions held before us. How many have joined the Church, and how much has been raised on the benevolences?

What the future has in store for us depends upon our present endeavors. We would gladly redouble our efforts and plan with reference to a great forward movement, but our hands are tied for want of finances.

For three years your Board has had a Secretary in the field, but this year we find ourselves handicapped by a deficit of two years' standing, and with no other source of revenue but the Children's Day collection to look forward to, we have thought it best not to have a paid Secretary in the field.

We propose to continue an aggressive policy by means of a district organization, in which there will be committed to some one person in each district, who shall be known as a District Secretary, the work of fostering all interests of the Sunday school by personal visitations, by means of local institutes and the securing of denominational group meetings in all the interdenominational Sunday school gatherings in the district. We wish them to place emphasis upon the observance of Children's Day and as early as possible carry out the requirements of the Discipline that where ten or more persons can be gathered to organize a Sunday school. We will allow a maximum expense of $20 a district out of the funds for the coming year.

We also request the presiding elders to give at least one-half day for Sunday school work at the district conferences.

We have appointed C. A. Battle to keep the Sunday School Notes in the "Advocate."

We wish to urge that each of our schools use the birthday offerings for the enlargement of the Church Extension Loan Fund.

We rejoice to know that the Wesley Organized Bible class work continues with increasing interest. There are now in our connection nearly three thousand enrolled classes, adult, senior and intermediate, with a membership of about 80,000. We urge our classes to enroll at once with our office in Nashville.

We believe that our General Board is wise in planning for larger things in Arizona and New Mexico, and we pledge $25 to this work out of our funds for next year.

We grant 100 Senior quarterlies to the Sunday school in the State peniten-

We recommend the appointment of the following as District Field Secretaries: Alexandria District, T. W. Holloman; Baton Rouge District, J. R. Abels; Lafayette District, A. P. Holt; Monroe District, C. M. Noble; New Orleans District, H. L. Baker; Ruston District, C. V. Reiser; Shreveport District, W. A. McKennon.

We recommend C. M. Noble to fill the vacancy on the Board caused by the death of T. J. Petty.

H. N. BROWN, Chairman. A. S. LUTZ, Secretary.

The Bishop called F. S. Parker to the chair.

REPORT NO. 2 OF THE BOARD OF EDUCATION.

M. C. Holt presented Report No. 2 of the Board of Education.

It was moved by S. J. Davies to amend the report by striking out the section relating to the Vanderbilt-Carnegie matter. C. C. Miller offered a substitute for the article. The substitute was laid on the table. The amendment was lost and the report was adopted as follows:

The report of the Board of Education of the Methodist Episcopal Church; South, shows that the past year has been one of great educational activity in our Church and of advance along all lines. We pledge ourselves to hearty co-operation.

The report of the Theological Department of Vanderbilt University was received showing progress and growth. We commend their work and would like to have a large number of our young preachers take this course.

The Department of Ministerial Supply and Training is doing a most excellent and much needed work. We recommend that four classes of the undergraduates take their courses through correspondence with this Department, or at Seashore Divinity

The work being done at Seashore Divinity School is worthy of our support. We urge as many preachers as possible to attend. Our share of the expense is $150, and we instruct the clerical members of the Board of Education to raise the amount by worthy of support and we commend the school.

The report of Centenary College is gratifying. The work done at the College is excellent and under the leadership of Dr. Wynn the future is assured. What is needed now is that we rally to the support of the College and send students and help raise a fund for endowment and to erect a new building for administration purposes.

We recommend that W. W. Holmes, F. R. Hill, J. L. Scales and J. M. Davis be elected Trustees of Centenary College.

The report from Mansfield College is very encouraging. The enrollment is 149, the largest in several years. The College is paying expenses and the President says that if we should send him twenty more girls, he would have a nice surplus by the end of the college year.

The following are named as Trustees: Clerical—W. W. Holmes, W. H. Coleman, A. I. Townsley, C. C. Miller, F. S. Parker, A. G. Shankle, H. N. Brown, W. R. Harvell, B. H. Sheppard and F. R. Hill, Jr. Lay—Eugene Joyner, R. E. Bobbitt R. E. Moore, N. W. Williams, H. T. Liverman, A. W. Baird, C. B. Hicks, W. D. Wadley, Ben Johnson, T. C. Middleton, John Rogers, D. L. Thompson, W. P. Head, S. H. Porter, and C. W. Elam.

At the request of the Minister's Aid Society this Board has assumed the work of this Society and will in the future handle the dues, funds and loans of said Society.

After a careful study of the plan submitted by the Committee on the correlation of Centenary and Mansfield Colleges, we recommend that correlation be deferred.

We recommend that Briscoe Carter be paid $225, being the balance due him.

The assessment for the next year is fixed at $7,000 for Conference Education and $2,109 for Education Extension, apportioned as follows:

		Ed. Extensn.
Alexandria District	$ .966.00	$289.00
Baton Rouge District	. 1,085.00	325.00
Lafayette District	. 945.00	284.00
Monroe District	. 945.00	283.00
New Orleans District	. 798.00	249.00
Ruston District	. 1.169.00	352.00
Shreveport District	. 1,092.00	327.00
Totals	$7.000.00	$2,109,00

The Board recommend that the Bishop be requested to make the following appointments: Thomas Carter and H. B. Carré, Professors in Vanderbilt University; F. N. Farker, Professor in Trinity College; R. H. Wynn, President of Centenary College; H. T. Carley, Professor in Centenary College; P. M. Brown, Conference Secretary of Education.

Your Board has carefully considered the acts of both the minority and majority members of the Vanderbilt University Board of Trustees in regard to Mr. Carnegie's proposed donation to one of the University departments.

We have also considered the act of our Bishops in their veto of the majority's course in this grave and important matter.

We therefore propose the following resolutions:

- 1. We heartily approve and commend the action of the Board's minority, and also the prompt, decisive and unqualified veto, which our Bishops placed upon what the majority decided to do.
- 2. It is our conviction that it will not only be unwise, but morally wrong ever to accept for the University any sum of money, whether great or small, which would even seem to impair the complete ownership and control of the Church in all departments of our great Institution.

  M. C. HOLT, Secretary.

The Report of the Committee on Prison work was adopted as follows:

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON PRISON WORK.

Confining ourselves to religious work we note with pleasure that religious services have been conducted in the State Penitentiary and the Monroe Training School with a reasonable measure of success.

In the State Penitentiary the preaching of the gospel has been supplemented with Sunday schools. The necessary literature has been supplied by the Conference Sunday School Board and interested superintendents of the State. The American Bible Society has through Rev. J. J. Morgan, of Dallas, Texas, supplied Bibles and Testaments to those prisoners desiring them. The main religious work of the State prison however, has been done by the Volunteer Prison League, organized in Louisiana penal institutions by Mrs. Maude Ballington Booth, of the Volunteers of America, 1908, the main purpose of which is to teach men and women to pray. Five years of the Volunteer Prison Leagues in the Louisiana State prisons have resulted in the enlistment of about twenty-six hundred prisoners in this work, of whom about fifteen hundred have now finished their sentences and are free, many of whom are reporting their where abouts and are known to be making good, thus proving the practicability of doing prison work.

We heartily commend the work of Rev. H. S. Johns, as Chaplain of the Louisiana Penitentiary.

Your Committee would recommend that our ministers wherever possible visit the parish jails and conduct services with those confined therein.

We recommend that H. S. Johns and D. C. Barr be added to the Committee on Prison work.

E. K. MEANS, Secretary.

S. H. Werlein presented the report of the Commission on the Laity Rights of women, which was adopted as follows:

REPORT OF COMMISSION ON LAITY RIGHTS OF WOMEN.

We beg leave to report that we approve the memorial of the women to the General Conference asking that the rights and privileges of lay membership in the Church be granted equally to men and women without distinction of sex.

We therefore offer the following resolution:

Whereas the women of the Church do much of the work which is the right and duty of lay members, and whereas the Discipline in Paragraphs 558, 580 and 592 recognizes Woman's right to participate in these activities, but limits her privileges in the official bodies which review the work and plan for its larger development, therefore Resolved that we the members of the Annual Conference respectfully mem-

S. H. WERLEIN, Chairman.
K. W. DODSON, Secretary. W. W. Drake presented the Report of the Committee on Temperance which was adopted as follows:

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON TEMPERANCE.

As a question of personal morals, our Church has always stood for total abstinence and the proper attitude of the individual toward intoxicating drinks. It is encouraging to know that this attitude is being emphasized and re-inforced from the Commercial point of view by the physician and many railroads, and other great corporation, which demand that their employees shall neither drink nor frequent drinking places. We rejoice in this as a sign of growing temperance sentiment.

We recommend the observance of Temperance Day in our Sunday schools and the enlistment of our people as pledged abstainers. We would encourage the plan of the Lincoln-Lee Legion under the auspices of the Anti-Saloon League, to enroll a million pledged signers in the near future; and the plans of the W. C. T. U. and other organizations in the same direction.

We would urge upon the school authorities of our State the duty of seeing that scientific temperance instruction is given in the schools as provided by law.

Another evil closely related to the curse of drink is that of social impurity, which is itself a disastrous form of intemperance, and in its commercial development in the tolerated vice district and the white slave traffic, is closely identified with the saloon. The awful ravages of this vice demand the attention of the Church, and call for earnest instruction of our children in the sacred truths regarding personal purity.

Looking at the Temperance question as a great moral issue, the Church of Christ cannot take any other position than that of unalterable opposition and determined warfare. And we rejoice to note the growing awakening of the American people on this subject. It is gratifying to learn that the United States Congress, in spite of a powerful opposition lobby, passed over the President's veto, the Webb-Kenyon bill for the control of inter-State traffic in liquor. We heartily approve the movement recently set on foot by the Anti-Saloon League for national prohibition. We rejoice in the fact that during the last year one State directly, West Virginia, and another indirectly, Arkansas, have accepted the prohibition policy; and that some of the political subdivisions of our own State have taken similar action. We hope for a further forward movement in Louisiana.

We endorse the public policy of the State Anti-Saloon League of asking the coming sesion of the Legislature to adopt the law-enforcement bills, including the anti-shipping bill, to be presented to the General Assembly. In order to give practical efficiency to our resolution we earnestly urge that all our men take pains by the necessary steps to secure their right of suffrage.

We earnestly recommend that as far as possible practical co-operation be given to the Anti-Saloon League by opening our pulpits as often as once a year to the superintendent and that each pastor and Sunday school superintendent on the Temperance Sunday or some other Sunday in April be requested to direct the offering of the day explaining its purpose, to the Anti-Saloon League to assist in the necessary expense of presenting their legislative program to the Legislature.

We urge our people, throughout the Conference, to use their influence with members of the Legislature for th passage of these bills.

We recommend that Rev. A. W. Turner be appointed Anti-Saloon League Superintendent.

W. WINANS DRAKE, for the Committee.

The Report of the Epworth League Board was presented by A. I. Townsley and adopted as follows:

REPORT OF THE EPWORTH LEAGUE BOARD.

The condition of Epworth Leagues throughout our connection, was so splendidly manifested in the address of Dr. F. S. Parker, our General Secretary, on last Wednesday evening, that we need not repeat the fact here.

We are glad to observe the Epworth League as an evangelizing and missionary agency is being appreciated more and more by our pastors.

We regret that conditions were such that no State Conference was held in Louisiana this year. We would suggest that every pastor in this Conference try to attend, in company with delegates from his charge, the State Epworth League Conference to be held June 17-21, 1914, either in Shreveport or in New Orleans.

The contributions of Epworth Leagues for the Cuba Special, for Candler College, amounted to $10,000 while $31,000 was given for missions throughout our connection.

We commend the Epworth Era as a high class religious journal worthy of careful perusal.

C. D. ATKINSON, Chairman.

Upon motion by J. F. Foster the Editor of the Minutes was authorized wherever necessary to abridge reports of Boards and Committees for printing in the Annual.

Martin Hebert presented the report of the Bible Society Board, which was adopted as follows:

REPORT OF BIBLE SOCIETY BOARD.

It is gratifying to learn that the American Bible Society enjoys a good degree of prosperity. It issued last year at home and in other lands 4,049,610 volumes of Scripture. It circulates the Bible in more than one hundred languages. It issued last year from the Bible House, New York, 2,107,859 volumes in seventy languages. It issued last year from its agencies abroad 1,941,751 volumes of Scripture, largely in the great Asiatic languages. The dissemination of the Word of God in these countries must ultimately achieve the overthrow of the Koran and the books devoted to the teaching of Buddhism. We deplore that even in our own land the reading of the Scriptures is opposed in our public schools. We are all convinced that our national prosperity depends upon adherance to the teaching of God's word. We believe that our preachers should advocate from our pulpits the introduction of devotional services, including the reading of a portion of Scripture, in their public schools.

The American Bible Society has a special claim upon the Louisiana Conference not only because of the general scope of its work but also because of its activity in the section of the land in which we labor. In this Southwestern region 56,580 volumes of the Bible have been distributed. Sixteen salaried colporteurs were employed during the year. House to house visitation has resulted in reaching 63,000 homes and of finding 24,000 houses without any Bible. The spiritual benefits resulting from efforts cannot be estimated. Do not overlook the fact that the American Bible Society is not neglectful of the needs of many who are serving terms in the penitentiary and reform schools. Thousands of Bibles have been placed in these public institution, and many a criminal has been led through their light and comfort to the knowledge and love of God. Three colporteurs are now at work in Louisiana among the French Creoles, and one among the Italians. The great number of immigrants who are coming to us, must be reached by the Word of God translated into their own language. This the American Bible Society is aiding to do. Considerations like these call to us as a Conference to support the American Bible Society with our prayers and money. The assessment last year for this cause was $800, the amount paid was $449, leaving a deficit of $351. We respectfully request that the assessment for the American Bible Society remain $800.

We wish to thank Rev. J. W. Fort of the Central Texas Conference for a contribution of $100 with which a colporteur's outfit and wagon have been purchased for work in Louisiana.

S. H. WERLEIN, Chairman. MARTIN HEBERT, Secretary.

John Sholars presented the Report of the Orphanage Board, which was adopted as follows:

REPORT OF THE ORPHANAGE BOARD.

We have considered the Report of the Board of Directors of the Louisiana Methodist Orphanage, which has been read to the Conference, and recommend its adoption and incorporation in the Conference Minutes. (For text of Report see Ap-

We are gratified at the present prosperous condition of this noble institution; commend its very capable and generous work; and bespeak for it, the prayers and liberal and hearty support of all our preachers and people, all Christians and all who pity suffering and destitute orphans. We commend the loyal administration of Rev. P. H. Fontaine, and bespeak for his successor Rev. R. W. Vaughan, whose thorough experience in and unstinted devotion to this work render his return to the superintendency a source of gratification to us all.

We recommend that this Conference levy upon the charges for the ensuing year an assessment of $10,000 for the maintenance and support of the Louisiana

Methodist Orphanage during the year 1914, to be apportioned as follows:

Alexandria District	73
Baton Rouge District
Lafayette District	46
Monroe District	43
New Orleans District	.78
Ruston District	69
Shreveport District	49

We further recommend that Easter and a special day in the fall of 1914 be set apart by this Conference as special days for raising money for the Louisiana Methodist Orphanage.

We recommend that this Conference express its appreciation of the liberal donations of Mrs. Lawson Higginbotham of Mer Rouge and Mrs. E. P. Mackie of New Orleans.

We recommend that this Conference request the Bishop presiding to appoint Rev. Robert W. Vaughan, Superintendent of the Louisiana Meahodist Orphanage for the year 1914.

We recommend that this Conference elect Rev. Henry T. Young to membership on the Conference Orphanage Board in place of Rev. H. R. Singleton, transferred. C. C. WIER, President.

JOHN SHOLARS, Secretary.

J. C. Rousseaux presented the Report of the Committee on District Conference Records, which was adopted as follows:

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON DISTRICT CONFERENCE RECORDS.

All seven of the records were before us and were carefully examined.

The record of the Shreveport District is in good order, except that the record of a resolution on a proposed camp meeting is entered in a confused manner.

Of the Monroe District the record is in good condition, except that no margin is observed.

The record of the Baton Rouge District is well kept and a model of neatness and arrangement, but we notice in one place no record of the reading and adoption of minutes.

Lafayette District—the record shows no margin and there is no account of the adoption of the minutes of one of the sessions.

Of the Ruston District we approve the record and commend the manner in which it has been kept.

We approve the manner in which the record for the New Orleans District is kept, but we fear that the loose leaf system used in the book renders it too liable to destruction.

Alexandria District. We approve the record; it is faithfully kept and in good condition.

J. B. Fulton presented the Report of the Committee on Church Publications, which was adopted as follows:

REPORT OF THE COMMITTEE ON CHURCH PUBLICATIONS.

We commend to our pastors and people the New Orleans Christian Advocate as worthy of their hearty support. The Editor, Rev. R. A. Meek, is rendering valuable service to the Church through the Advocate and we felicitate ourselves upon his ability. In our last report we recommended that the differences between the Board of Trustees of the New Orleans Depository and the Publishing Committee of the New Orleans Christian Advocate be submitted to arbitration for adjustment. The report of the arbitration is submitted herewith, marked "Exhibit A." (For Exhibit, see Appendix, page 50.)

The report of the Board of Trustees of the New Orleans Depository is herewith submitted, marked "Exhibit B." (For Exhibit, see Appendix, page 50.)

In view of these reports your Committee respectfully recommend that whereas the New Orleans Christian Advocate pays nothing in the way of rent for this property, the publishers of the Advocate should pay the taxes and keep up the insurance on the building so long as they are the sole occupants.

We recommend further that the Trustees of the Depository with the co-operation of the Publishing Committee remove the printing press to another building as soon as they are assured that they can rent the depository to good advantage.

We recommend the appointment of Mr. J. H. Carter of New Orleans on the Board of Trustees of the Methodist Depository in place of Mr. J. H. Campman, deceased.

We submit the reply of the Book Committee, marked Exhibit C, with reference to a book depository to be opened at 512 Camp Street. (For Exhibit see Appendix, page 51.)

Our Connectional organs, "The Christian Advocate," "The Epworth Era," "The Methodist Quarterly Review," and the "Missionary Voice," continue to maintain in their high standard of excellence. We rejoice that our Sunday school literature also maintains a steady increase of circulation and profit to the Church.

The report of the Treasurer of the New Orleans Depository is submitted, Exhibit D. (For Exhibit see Appendix, page 51.)

R. H. Wynn presented the Report of the Committee on Memorials to the General Conference. The Report was acted upon item by item. Items A, B, and C, were adopted. Item D and E were submitted without recommendation by the Committee and motions to adopt were lost Items F and G were adopted. The Report was then adopted as a whole as follows:

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON MEMORIALS TO THE GENERAL CONFERENCE.

Item A. Your Committee recommend the adoption of the memorial of the Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America and its transmission to the General Conference of our Church and the President and Congress of the United States with the endorsement of our body as follows:

"The Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America in quadrennial session assembled in Chicago December 9, 1912, instructed the Executive Committee to prepare and submit the following memorial.

"The latest obtainable reports show that the authorized strength of the army is a little over 95,000 men, distributed among 157 garrison posts and sub-posts, all of which however, are not occupied, and that the navy comprises 35 battleships, 32 cruisers, 21 gun boats, 10 monitors and 116 smaller vessels, with 53,275 officers and men. Much to our regret we learn that this great host of men have in the navy only 21 and in the army only 67 chaplains to give them aid and comfort in time of illness and suffering.

The Federal Council of Churches of Christ in America believe that there ought to be more chaplains, and that we should make provision for one chaplain for each battle ship and cruiser, for each school ship and navy yard and also one for each occupied army post. We also believe that the providing of chaplain ought not to be treated as a mere matter of denominational proportion in an effort to distribute officers among various Christian bodies but rather in the interest of providing adequate moral influence and spiritual help.

"In view of all these facts and in view of the further fact that the Government continues to increase the army and to build battle ships we cannot afford to neglect these men whom we call into our service for official duties. It becomes us, as a God fearing nation, to give more heed to the high interest of these men, because of their generally high character, and because they stand pre-eminently at the front of our national honor and need.

"We would therefore appeal most earnestly to the President and Congress to give immediate attention to these most important matters for the welfare of the thousands of men concerned, and in the larger interest of the duty of this great people to those who serve them in interests so critical and who are necessarily exposed to the greatest possibilities of suffering and death."

SHAILER MATTHEWS, President. RIVINGTON D. LORD, Rec. Sec. FRANK MASON NORTH, Chair. Executive Com. CHAS. S. McFARLAND, Sec. of the Council.

Item B. We recommend the adoption of the following memorial to General Conference:

"Amend Discipline by adding to Quarterly Conference business the question, Who is elected Agent for the General and Conference organs? Add the question to be asked at each quarterly conference: What is being done for the circulation of the General and Conference organs, and is there a written report from the Agent?

We recommend the adoption of the following:

Be it resolved by the Louisiana Annual Conference now in session, that in order to encourage our preachers to read broadly and comprehensively the best books on church, Sunday school and League work, doctrine, sociology, church history, biography and missions, theology, philosophy, science and general literature, we respectfully memorialize the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, to be held May, 1914, to provide for a special committee whose duty it shall be to select such books and give the list thereof to the Publishing Agents, who shall publish a bulletin anaually and circulate same among the preachers of our connection.

S. H. WERLEIN, THOMAS H. MORRIS. (Item D. Concerning the change of name of the Church was not adopted.)

(Item E. Concerning the removal of the time limit, was not adopted.)

Item F. We hereby memorialize the General Conference to so change the law touching the use of tobacco as to make ineligible any candidate for admission on trial, who uses it.

Signed by P. O. LOWREY and thirty-five other Brethren.

Item G. Resolved that the Louisiana Annual Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, memorialize the General Conference to make it the duty of the Book Editor to publish the General Minutes of our Church; and further resolved that the General Conference shall make it the duty of the Book Editor to publish in the General Minutes a concise statistical report of all the individual charges of the annual conferences, to be compiled concisely from the Journals of the said conferences, or from a form filled in by the Statistical Secretaries of the said conferences and immediately forwarded to the Book Editor; and further resolved that it shall be the duty of the Book Editor to furnish a complete Clerical Directory of the whole Church in the General Minutes.

Signed by C. A. BATTLE and eight others.

The following preamble and resolutions touching Bishop Candler were adopted by a rising vote:

Whereas Bishop W. A. Candler has by his brotherliness, consideration and particular regard for the welfare of our membership, greatly endeared himself to us, strengthening the ties that his former presidency of the Louisiana Conference formed: and whereas his solicitude for the cause of the gospel in Louisiana and his wisdom have inspired in us the utmost confidence in his leadership: and whereas by his spiritual ministry Bishop Candler has greatly edified us and moved us to the most perfect conforming of our lives to the New Testament standard of both ministers and people;

Be it resolved that we earnestly request Bishop Candler that if it be possible to do so he make his residence in the city of New Orleans during such a portion of the year as may be expedient and consistent with his other obligations; and that we do our utmost by earnest co-operation and prayer to make our fellowship in the gospel fruitful unto the salvation of souls and the building up of the Church in Louisiana.

REPORT No. 2 OF THE COMMITTEE ON CHURCH PUBLICATIONS.

We recommend J. M. Henry, W. W. Drake and Briscoe Carter as members for the Louisiana Conference of the Committee of Publication of the New Orleans Christian Advocate. G. E. CAMERON, G. E. CAMERON, E. K. MEANS, J. B. FULTON.

The Report of the Committee on Sabbath Observance was presented by Felix R. Hill, Jr., and adopted as follows:

REPORT OF COMMITTEE ON SABBATH OBSERVANCE.

Regarding as we do the Christian Sabbath as one of the fundamental and indispensable institutions of the Church, it is imperative that we recognize its proper observance as being essential to individual piety and to the successful prosecution of the work of the Church. Especially is this true within the bounds of our Conference, where because of the large Catholic and foreign population—ideas of a continental Sunday obtain. With many of our own people, seemingly, it has been forgotten that the day is intended to be a day of worship and thus, with these, the sanctuary is neglected and church going is supplanted by various forms of amusement and entertertainment. The widespread and general desecration of the day should be to us a matter of serious concern and every possible effort should be put forth to the creation of healthful sentiment and to the arousing of a deep moral conviction on this important subject.

We endorse the Sunday League of America, and commend its purpose, plan and representatives to our people as worthy of their cordial co-operation.

We also recommend that it be the order of this Conference that, during the ensuing Conference year, each church within our several charges at least devote one service to the consideration of the sanctity of the Christian Sunday and its proper observance.

F. R. HILL, Jr., Chairman.
J. W. BOOTH, Secretary.

REPORT OF BOARD OF DIRECTORS OF LOUISIANA METHODIST ORPHANAGE.

The Board of Directors of the Louisiana Methodist Orphanage beg leave to submit the following report for the year 1913:

Since our last annual report one year ago, the progress of this institution in a material way has been reasonably satisfactory. Generous-hearted people, generous to our needs and responsive to the nobler impulses of the heart on a broader sense than that of mere maintenance, have supplied us with the means of extending the utilities of our plant and placing the work of the superintendency and management upon a more systematic basis. Two noble minded, generous hearted women have made this possible by the liberal benevolence; these women are the lamented Mrs. E. P. Mackie of New Orleans whose contribution was $1,000, and Mrs. Lawson Higginbotham, of Mer Rouge, La., whose contribution was $4,335.27, the cost of the erection of an elegant, modern and up-to-date home for our Superintendent, which is complete in all its appointments and an ornament to our grounds, filling a long felt want but one we had never felt able to possess.

We have at this time 77 healthy, happy and contented children in the home, all of whom are in school who are of school age, and are making most gratifying progress in school work, and some of them are taking the highest rank in the high school, in which there is an enrollment of about 600 pupils. Our children represent 10 per cent of the total attendance of the High School, and took 75 per cent of the prizes offered for proficiency, deportment and the like. This is an eloquent tribute to home management and the discipline of the home.

The financial condition of the institution is satisfactory. We owe $6,000, and on January 1 next there will be due on it $180 of interest and $2,000 of principle will be due. We have the money to pay off this $2,180 as it falls due and will reduce our indebtedness to $4,000; and within the next year or two we expect to be free of debt. Our receipts from the Conference assessments and otherwise, except the two donations stated above, for the conference year now ended, amounted to $10,517.29 on November 25, 1913; add to this the Mackie donation of $1,000 and the Higginsbotham donation of $4,335.27, and we are able to make the encouaraging showing of total receipts of $15,852.56. And by the time this report is read to the Conference our receipts will have amounted to upwards of $16,000.

At the meeting of this Board on the 25th day of November, 1913, the terms of C. B. Carter, R. H. Wynn and A. G. Shankle, having expired, these members were all re-elected for a term of three years, and the Conference is requested to confirm their election.

At the meeting of this Board July 8, 1913, Rev. P. H. Fontaine Superintendent of the Orphanage, handed in his resignation, which was accepted, and R. W. Vaughan was elected to take the place of the retiring Superintendent; and the Board request the Conference to appoint Rev. R. W. Vaughan, Superintendent of the Louisiana Methodist Orphanage for the year 1914.

At the meeting of the Board last November a resolution was adopted requesting the Annual Conference to again make the assessment of $10,000 for the maintenance and support of this institution for the year 1914; and to set apart Easter and a special work day in the fall of 1914 as special days for raising money for the institution. The Board had hoped that it would not be necessary to make the ten thousand dollar assessment next year; but our situation is not such at the present time that we can dispense with it.

We will start out with the New Year under very auspicious and encouraging circumstances, and we expect it to be the banner year of the life of the institution up to that time in progress in everyway.

S. D. PEARCE, President.

Minutes of Joint Meeting of Publishing Committee of New Orleans Christian Advocate and Trustees of Methodist Depository:

By agreement Dr. I. W. Cooper, representing the Publishing Committee, and W. W. Carré, representing the Board of Trustees of the New Orleans Depository, having selected Edward Alvis as third member of Committee met at Monteleone Hotel, New Orleans, November 15, 7:30 p. m., to discuss publishing of "Advocate" at 512 Camp Street. (This meeting being in compliance with action at the preceding session of the Conference, providing for arbitration of differences between the Publishing Committee and the Board of Trustees. See Page 25 of printed Minutes of the Conference of 1912.)

W. W. Carré, was appointed Chairman. Edward Alvis, was appointed Secretary.

Meeting was opened by prayer offered by Dr. Cooper.

For information of the Committee the Act of Incorporation of the New Orleans Methodist Depository was read; also that of the Publishing Committee of the New Orleans Christian Advocate; also the present contract for publishing the New Orleans Christian Advocate.

After full discussion the Committee makes the following report:

Owing to damages to the building, 512 Camp Street, in which the Advocate is published, by constant vibration of press, the inability of the Trustees to rent the first floor by reason of the vibration, leaving the Trustees without funds for repairs or taxes: we recommend that the Trustees of the Methodist Depository with cooperation of the Publishing Committee rent a suitable building for publishing the New Orleans Christian Advocate as soon as they deem best. EDWARD ALVIS, Secretary.

This November 15, 1913.

You will see from the above report that there is an overdraft of $1.51.

Up to the year 1912 the Methodist Depository has yielded a revenue from which the Board of Trustees have sent to the Annual Conference amounts varying from $400 to $500 per year, to be used for widows and orphans, and we regret very much that the financial condition is such now that we are unable to send anything.

This has been brought about as stated in our communication last year by the removal of our tenant w, hom we had for many years, who said he could not continue using the premises on account of the vibration of the press on the second floor, used by the publisher of the Christian Advocate.

We have been endeavoring during the whole year to rent this property, but have been unsuccessful on account of the objections raised to this vibration caused by the

You understand that the New Orleans Christian Advocate pays nothing in the way of rent for this property, and the positian we are in now is that we have absolutely no revenue whatever, and unless some arrangement is made to provide for a revenue, it will be absolutely necessary for us to borrow money to pay taxes as well as insurance that we have to carry, to say nothing of repairs to the building.

We hope the Conference will take such action as will relieve this serious condition of affairs. This property is well located, and the present neighborhood is rapidly improving, and it will not be long before the property will be very valuable.

We are, however, convinced that unless the printing press is removed to another

MEMOIRS

REV. C. W. CARTER, D. D.

It is surely no disparagement of those who remain—his brethren, comrades and friends—to say of the great man whom we now commemorate.

"He passed, a soul of nobler mould."

One of the greatest of services that a friend of Dr. Carter could render his brethren and his church would be by written or spoken word to make his well remembered presence felt at this annual gathering by tracing the life story with only the later chapters of which most of us are familiar. To accomplish this compensative task would be difficult, were there ample biographical material, such is the elusive and indefinable quality of a great personality. But scarcely anything of the kind is to be found among his manuscripts, which consist mainly of sermons and addresses, and so seldom broken was his habitual silence concerning himself, that even his children and intimate friends can recall but few allusions to himself that fell from his lips in conversation. His daughter, Mrs. McVoy, with whom he made his home during the later years of his life writes: "I wish I knew more of the early life of my father, but he was a man who talked very little especially about himself. I think now that in his later years I should have questioned him and tried to find out details which he never mentioned, but the habits of life become so fixed." Though by many years his junior, my privileges of intimate friendship were unusual, but my memory of the things he said about himself are few and sacred treasures. His intimacies with surviving contemporaries afforded but occasional glimpses from the interior of that beautiful soul that shone so charmingly through the channels of a noble, a generous, a holy and united life. It was only when he preached that his habitual reticence gave way to the impulse of self-revelation, but even then auto-biographical allusions were rare.

If Dr. Carter's characteristic modesty has eluded the interest of the annialist, it has not by any means been able to obscure from those who knew him, the beauty and strength of his character, and such a portraiture as I may be able to make with the materials at hand I attempt in order to create in younger men ideals, to brighten hope and strengthen faith in those who are mature and to afford some gratification to our natural craving for expressing what we all feel, yet cannot half reveal.

Of the six daughters of George Daugherty, an immigrant from the North of Ireland, and Mary Higginbotham, Emeline Elizabeth, the youngest, became the wife of an Englishman by the name of Thomas Carter, who came to Louisiana by way of Georgia in 1830.

Mr. Carter settled in the arish of East Feliciana, where his only child, Charles William, was born November 27, 1833. Two years later he died, leaving a considerable estate, and in 1837 his widow wedded Mr. W. F. Flynn, who removed his family to a plantation in the Parish of Tensas, where with four half-sisters Charles grew up. His step-father was in every sense a true parent. An able business man, he conserved and increased his wife's fortune. Mrs. Flynn was a devout Presbyterian and her home was open to ministers of all denominations who came thither. The family became identified with the Meahodist Church and held membership in a circuit society known as Davies Chapel, so named in honor of the Rev. Stephen J. Davies, of whom, in his Semi-Centennial Address, Dr. Carter made the following eloquent mention: was Stephen J. Davies, the Welchman who left his country when nine years old, but not before the rocks and crags and weird scenery of Wales had implanted in him the germs of spiritual and intellectual power; and as that power was developed in the activities of the ministry, he became one of the strongest and most helpful preachers in the Conference. He was my pastor when I was a college boy, and I noted a fervor in his preaching which I have never seen excelled. To-day there is a little chapel on Tensas River built under his administration of the affairs of our circuit."

Though Mr. Davies is the only one of his early pastors whom he enshrines in that interesting portrait gallery of early members of the Louisiana Conference, the influence of these godly men must have been great both at the fireside, where they touched his young life, and in the little chapel, where from time to time their fervid eloquence called men to seek the things which are above. From them he acquired a life-long reverence for the Methodist ministry.

The home in which Dr. Carter was reared was one in which religion was normal and piety neither strained nor ostentatious. I am not acquainted with the life of the four daughters, but what we know of that of the distinguished son makes it difficult to mark a time when he passed from the tutelage of an obedient child of the church into the estate of a conscious son of God by faith in Jesus Christ. To homes of this sort and influences that form the Christian character in advance of the onslaught of the passions of youth and the seductions of the world we must ever look as the sources from which come those strong, pure and lofty lives that we are sometimes tempted to classify as a species with the passing generation rapidly becoming extinct.

Dr. Carter's early eduction was obtained under tutors in association with his half-sisters at the plantation home in Tensas. In 1851 he entered Centenary College of Louisiana, then domiciled at Jackson, in the section of the State in which he had been born. There friendships with distinguished families such as the Merricks, the Kernans, the Ellises and the Thomases were pleasantly resumed. The freshman class numbered eighty, the graduates four years later numbered twenty-two, of whom the youngest, Judge T. C. W. Ellis, of the Civil District Court of New Orleans, and Col. John S. Young, of Shreveport, the oldest, survive, Dr. Carter having been next in seniority to Col. Young. The honors of the class were divided between four—Carter first, Young second, Ellis third. Judge Ellis writes of the Centenary class of 1855: "It seems strange that the oldest two and the youngest should have survived by years the others of that distinguished class." It is also remarkable that the first three honor men should have long survived alltherest.

From Centenary College both Carter and Ellis entered the Department of Law of the Louisiana University, the predecessor of Tulane University of Louisiana, in which great institution one of his sons was later to occupy a professor's chair. There they graduaed in 1857. By unanimous choice of his class Carter was chosen Valedictorian, again bearing off the laurels and demonstrating that in any scholarly sphere eminence was within his reach.

These college and university days were a time of forming friendships that lasted through life. One at least of these was as deep, true and tender as that of David and Jonathan. No truly great and noble nature is deficient in the capacity for makingfriends and the passion of friendship surpasses the love of women. During their University days Messrs. Carter and Ellis were frequent worshippers at the old Carondelet Street Church, of which my father was then pastor. His signature upon their diplomas, as a Trustee of Centenary College, and his official visits during their student days formed an initial link of interest and, especially in the case of Mr. Carter, ripened into a friendship that he believed death had not severed. My earliest knowledge of Dr. Carter I gained when a mere lad I overheard my father remark to my mother, "Carter is a rare man." In the Semi-Centennial Address Dr. Carter thus speaks of this "There was Linus Parker, the fourth and greatest Editor of the New older friend: Orleans Christian Advocate. He was a staunch friend to the young preachers; and as I stood by his bed and saw his noble life ebb away, it seemed to me that the sun had gone down forever." Of other strong friendships with his Conference brethren there are men here who could speak better than I. The passing of his friends was to him a sore loss, which after the memoirs of seven of our old men had been read found expression at the previous session of the Conference, in the pathetic words, "I feel lonely." His supreme friendship was with his classmate Judge Ellis, from whose personal letter, written less than a month after Dr. Carter's death, I take the liberty of quoting. "He had reached almost the fourscore limit and although not to be unexpectedthough it was the fall of the ripe fruit, the garner of the sheaf rich in the splendor of its golden maturity—yet the intelligence of his passing was an unspeakable grief to me, for I loved him as brother, and I mourned that I shall meet him here no more. My faith tells me that I shall see him again."

Of course a nature of the fineness of that of Dr. Carter was not insusceptible to girlhood's charms. A commonplace book dating from college and university days bears witness to the responsiveness of his nature to the beautiful motive of love. He could not only grapple to himself with hooks of steel friends among his class mates and fellows, but he could also be bound by Cupid's golden bands. Scraps of poetry and sentimental effusions that obtained permanent expression upon these intimate pages testify to the golden day dreams that intruded amidst the rigorous disciplines of his classical studies and from time to time shimmered in airy allurement upon the dreary background of Blackstone or the Civil Code. As we have seen, he nevertheless got through his law books with distinction. The concrete personal reality upon whom these sentimental outgoings of the young man's fancy focalized was Miss Clara L. Pentecost, whom he met in New Orleans while a law student. She was a grand daughter of the famous Pennsylvania lawyer Joseph Pentecost, widely known as "Honest Joe." As a student she also was sojourning in the Crescent City when Mr. Carter became acquainted with her. They were married March 17, 1859, at the house of Mr. John Morton Carter, the groom's uncle, in Tensas Parish, two years years and a half before Mr. Carter entered the ministry. This marriage was based upon deep congeniality and mutual respect, beginning in the purest sentiment and therefore enduring in ever deepening love and confidence until Mrs. Carter's death forty-six years later. Mrs. Carter used in pleasantry to say that she had married a lawyer, not a preacher, and therefore had been brought into the itinerancy by indirection. It was indeed two years before her husband's great choice was made that this elect lady cast in her lot with his, not knowing what the future had in store for her, save that she could suffer no wrong or indignity at the hands of the noble man at her side. Through the fortysix years of their itinerancy she could not have better adorned the minister's home or served his calling had it been her initial choice. She died at Arcadia, La., October 30, 1906. She was the mother of eleven children, of whom six are living; the others died in childhnod or infancy. The living sons are Briscoe, Thomas and J. Van; the surviving daughters are Mrs. Mattie C. Peace, Mrs. A. D. McVoy and Mrs. Edward Gardia. These all manifest unusual talent and capacity for intellectual pursuits and are followers of the faith of their parents. The eldest child, Harry, died July 23, 1863, aged three and a half years; William Edward died June 29 of the same year, aged two and a half; Charles died September 27, 1873, a babe of six months; George Dougherty died June 14, 1882, aged six and a half; Clara Belle died October 3, 1890, aged six and a half.

Mrs. Peace says that Dr. Carter studied law not from any deep interest in the subject, but chiefly because his mother and step-father desired that he should do so. All the more remarkable therefore was his brilliant career at the University. He went into practice in the office of Thomas L. Bayne of New Orleans. I do not know how long he continued in practice. I never heard him allude to the fact that he had been admitted to the bar. Judge Ellis says: "After graduation he practiced a short time here (in New Orleans), and then turning from the promise and allurement that noble profession held out, he entered the service of the Master."

It was three years after graduation from the law school that Mr. Carter entered the Ministry and was received on trial in the Louisiana Annual Conference, an event fascinatingly recored in the Semi-Centennial Address. In 1861 he was stationed at Mansfield under the Confederate Government as civilian in charge of army supplies. "While there," says Mrs. Peace, "he was converted under the ministry of Dr. Thweatt, and joined the Methodist Church, the family having already become identified with the Church in Tensas Parish." To reconcile the statement that at the age of twentyeight he was converted with what we know of his pure, pious youth and reverent attitude toward the church seems difficult. Probably the event in his spiritual history to which Mrs. Peace refers was some crisis that decided him upon the course of his life devotion to Christ's service in the itinerant ministry. Of the pastor of his college days I have already quoted his appreciative words; I have spoken also of his churchgoing habits during his student days in New Orleans. Of the latter period Judge "During the session he told me that he felt his call to preach." Probably Ellis says: he had never experienced a catyclysmic passing from death unto life, but with the unfolding of his spiritual and mental powers apprehended Christ according to the increasing measure of child, youth and man, and later came to the parting of the ways where he must either renounce the world for the prophet's calling or turn his back upon the good Spirit that had hitherto led him in uprightness.

What it cost Charles W. Carter to enter the itinerant ministry we should know but for incidental allusions by others. His lips never uttered one of those ignoble words of small men who speak of the sacrifices they have made for Christ. His own estimate of the transaction he would with equal modesty have withheld but that it comes out in a number of his sermons on the ministry; for example, in an eloquent utterance on the passage (Acts xx. 24) "Neither count I may life dear unto myself, so that I might finish my course with joy, and the ministry which I have received of the Lord Jesus, to testify the gospel of the grace of God." The biographer may venture here to speak of that of which his subject would have been forever silent. I again quote his bosom friend: "He would have developed a great lawyer. He had the moral stamina and brain, the clear, discriminating judgment—and in his make-up was of the stuff from which great lawyers and judges are made." He would undoubtedly have taken rank with the friends of his law period—W. B. Spencer, who became a Supreme Court Justice, E. John Ellis, who was known as the "Silver-tongued, and who had a brilliant congressional career, T. C. W. Ellis, whose erudition, legal acumen and ever true moral sense give him a place of eminence among great men on the bench.

Whatever the attractions of a learned profession, it is not unlikely that the life of a country gentleman would have more attracted his simple, retiring nature. Such a prospect was opened to him when, in January, 1860, his step-father turned over to him an estate of one hundred thousand dollars value in lands and slaves. He counted all things but loss for Christ and gave himself unreservedly to the traveling connection of the Southern Methodist Church and to the end remained true to his ideals of self-denying service. "At the final reckoning," says Judge Ellis, "the wisdom of his choice will be made manifest."

That choice then meant more than it necessarily implies in these happier times when the rigorous conditions of itinerant life have been mitigated and the salaries of our ministers are more nearly adequate to their needs; when the calling of the Methodist minister opens ways to eminence and ecclesiastical preferment and gives access to the best society. I have never heard Dr. Carter mention his own experience of the hardships of those early itinerant days; but the memoirs of his fallen comrades which from year to year he prepared and read at memorial services of the Conference give vivid outlines of heroism in the midst of hardships that would as truly have described his own endurance. While reading the sorrowful catalog of the bereavements he sustained mainly during the earlier years of his ministry we more than suspect that of the little lives of his children some were in a very real sense laid upon the altar of consecration to the service of Christ and the church. He had transported his family and household goods over long stretches of well-nigh impassible roads through the rigors of North Louisiana winters; he had endured long periods of separation from his growing family, whom he was compelled to leave while he threaded the swamps and hills of a rural district; portioning to the brave wife and the merry children the burden and care of the home. His fortune was, of course, greatly diminished by the issue of the war; the itinerancy consumed the rest. That also was cheerfully laid upon the altar of service. He once said to me with accustomed modesty, "I ought not to have gone to New Orleans; I never did anything there and it cost me what little I had." Near the days of his laying down his loved employ he said at an appropriate time during the session of a district conference: "I desire to make a confession. I have long cherished an ambition, and it is this: to be the junior preacher on a large country circuit." In many passages of sermons and addresses keen analysis of the genius of Methodism alternates with expressions of love for the work of the ministry. He never thought of it as other than an honor, a high calling.

The record of appointments served by C. W. Carter, as given in the Minutes of the Conferences, is as follows: 1861, Pt. Coupee; 1862-65 were years of war and disorganization and the General Minutes give no returns from the Louisiana Conference, but C. W. Carter was preaching, most of the time in Morehouse. Resuming the record in the General Minutes, we find him in Baton Rouge from 1866 to 1868; in 1869 and '70 he was at Bastrop; in 1871, '72 at Mansfield; in 1873-75 on the Delhi District: in 1876, '77 at Trenton; in 1878 again at Bastrop, and the following year at Monroe and Trenton; in 1880-84 at Felicity St., New Orleans; in 1885, '86 at Carondelet St., New Orleans; in 1887-1892, Editor of the New Orleans Christian Advocate, in connection with this work serving also during 1888 the Dryades St. Church, and in 1890 Carrollton and Gretna and in 1892 the New Orleans District. He remained on the New Orleans District two years, having no other work during the second year. In 1894 he was elected President of Centenary College of Louisiana and remained in that important post among the scene of his own college days four years cherishing and sustaining his Alma Mater. From 1898 to 1901 he was presiding elder of the Opelousas District, the name of the District being in the meanwhile changed to Crowley. From Crowley District he went back to First Church, Baton Rouge, after an interval of twenty-four years from the time when he had there declined the advantages of an attractive transfer to remain in the difficult field he had chosen. In 1904 and 1905 he was stationed at Arcadia; in 1906, '07 he served New Iberia, and in 1907, with blessings on his head and honors and achievements associated with his name, he requested and was granted a superannuate relation.

Into that bare catalog we must read a record of conscientious toil and self-denial, of high ideals steadfastly maintained, of brotherly love and evangelistic zeal, of fidelity and loyalty, of intercessions and spiritual travail, of hungerings and thirstings after righteousness and infillings of the Spirit, of which the chronicles of his life contain no mention, but which are laid up before the throne. In a letter requesting for himself the superannuate relation, dated Natchitoches, December 1, 1908, he thus recapitulates:"

"The time has come for me to retire from the active work. The last few years have demonstrated to me that I am able to do the work required. If I am not able to do the work then I am in the way and hindering the Lord's cause. This I cannot knowingly do. You have bestowed upon (me) all the honors in your power to give, and I have appreciated your love and good will as manifested in these things. I rejoice in the fact that you have so many young and capable men to take the places of us older men as we pass out. I have served as pastor thirty years, as presiding elder ten years, as editor seven years, as college president four years. If you will grant my request to put me on the list of superannuates, I will be very grateful to you."

The sum of these years of sedvice is fifty-one, but in fact his actice ministry was of but forty-eight years duration as there is an overlapping of three years when he was at the same time pastor or presiding elder and editor.

In 1879 the honorary degree of Doctor of Divinity was conferred upon him by his Alma Mater, and with characteristic modesty he placed the parchment token in his trunk, where some months later Mrs. Carter lighted upon it by chance and was thus made aware of this honor. In 1884 he was fraternal messenger to the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church. He collaborated in the preparation of the Hymn Book that preceded our present Hymnal. He was a member of the Board of Missions from 1887 to 1906. He was delegate to the General Conference eight times successively, from 1878 to 1906. From time to time he was in demand as preacher or speaker for special services, and never did he fail to measure up to all requirements and expectations. He was sane and solvent and absolutely safe. If he ever in any relation disappointed expectation it was only for those who had not wisdom to discern the intrinsic merit of his work. He was not appreciated by sensation mongers, and those who feed upon froth and wind found his meat too strong.

We may now give some study to Dr. Carter's peculiar powers as a preacher of the gospel. To begin with, we must go back to his scholastic period. No unprepared man preachers well. If for a time an ignorant and indolent man attracts attention by his preaching it is like the applause that a dog receives for walking on his hind legs—not because he does it well, but because he does it at all. Inspiration comes not to the thriftless idler. The superficial cannot command the sources of intellectual and spiritual power. No divine afflatus rests upon the weakling who is content to present less than the best product of his whole personality as an offering up to God through the Spirit. If we had no other legacy from the life of Dr. Carter, no other inheritance from his spiritual wealth than the demonstration that great preaching is the product of persevering toil and prayer, our debt to him would be inestimable. I speak not thus to commend to others his peculiar methods: every one must find for himself how best to operate his own wonderful psycho-physical machine to the glory of God and then use all earnestness to make his life most fruitful in his calling.

The staple of Dr. Carter's education was the cultural studies of his college course and the law, but his mental furnishing was exceeding broad. The college literary society had given him readiness of speech and the habit of writing gave him conciseness, simplicity and clearness. He had been in his college days a member of The Seven Wise Men, a secret society the exercises in which consisted of literary work of a strict and high character. It is doubtful if a college life centering in Greek letter fraternities largely dominated by society and athletics is capable of producing men of just his type. His study of classic languages must be credited with a part of his skill in the use of his English tongue. No man speaks or writes his mother tongue at its best who is not also versed in other languages. To this principle Dr. Carter himself called attention in his memoir of P. H. Diffenwirth, an accomplished polyglot, many years a member of this Conference.

That Dr. Carter was a conscious seeker of style is evident to a critic of his written and spoken discourse. He said to me some years ago: "I have read every book on rhetoric and homiletics that I could lay my hands on. From Quintilian to the latest Yale Lectures he put under tribute those who wrote on the art of speaking.

He read an enormous amount of good literature, encyclopaedic in its scope, and continued a great reader to the end. During the fifty-one years of his ministry, including the period of his superannuation, the carefully kept list of the books he read totals one thousand and seventy, not counting his readings of the Bible. The first year includes the Hymn Book, the Discipline, four perusals of the New and one of the Old Testament and the conference course. His reading at this time was done largely by pine knot fires, as the Civil War had made other illuminants scarce. Much suffering from sciatica together with the large demands of life may account for the unusual fact that during the first two years he was an Editor he records the reading of but The later part of this remarkable catalog may be examined somewhat nine volumes. in detail as a key to the source of his unfailing freshness. Almost any year's reading would make a five foot library equal to the famous selection of Harvard's ex-president. For 1910, when he was seventy-five years of age, the list includes fifty-three volumes, comprising forty-five different works. A partial analysis gives ten volumes of fiction, of which seven are recent and three reversions to the standards, such as Don Quixote and Rokeby. In the biography class we find three volumes including Lord Roseberry's "Life of William Pitt." Works of history are in the lead with fourteen volumes, including the seven of Carlyle's Frederick the Great, and, among the recent, John Fiske and Theodore Roosevelt. Still urged by his ruling passion, we find him reading two works on preaching—Jowett's "High Calling" and Kennard's "Psychic Power in Preaching." Of works of a scientific character we find but four and they on psychology. Of literature we find an essay in criticism—"The Poetry of Tennyson," by Van Dyke, the four volumes of Dr. Holmes's "Autocrat" series, a volume of essays and W. J. Bryan's oration, "The Prince of Peace." There are two volumes that may be classified as devotional reading, and politics is well represented by Woodrow Wilson's "The State." Theology with ten volumes comes second to history and includes only the new, with which we might classify the latest edition of the "Discipline." The record for 1909 shows fiction far in the lead with eighteen out of a total of thirty-seven volumes, Victor Hugo bulking large in the number. Theology is second with five, psychology next with four. Our old friend Boswell's Johnson fills the biographical section, and Mott's "Future Leadership of the Church" barely prevents a break in his reading in homiletics and pastoral theology. The Methodist Hymnal and three volumes of essays in criticism give us the more purely literary section. The list for 1908 includes fifty-five volumes, fiction still in the lead with fourteen volumes. In philosphy three out of four volumes are from Plato. Of course a book on preaching is included and one on elocution. Of poetry there are five and of criticism four volumes.

But the most astonishing and significant fact of his reading was the oft repeated perusals of the Bible. From 1858 to 1912 he had read the entire Old Testament through sixty-one times and the New one hundred and seventy-five times. When the Revised Version appeared he carefully compared it verse by verse with the Authorized Version and marked every variation of rendering and of text. As Editor of the New Orleans Christian Advocate about this time he notes in his column of "Briefs" that some patient man has counted the 792,444 words of the Revised Bible and found that 721,672 are the same as those in the version of 1611. He felicitates himself and the Church that the Authorized Version is accurate and that the language has changed very little in 275 years.

If any of us has wondered at Dr. Carter's undiminished freshness, beauty of speech and power in preaching, "E'en down to old age," so that he was not below his best when he preached the ordination sermon at Monroe two weeks before his death, our wonder may now be resolved. He kept himself fresh and vital by constantly feeding his mind and heart upon the best products of human talent and the living word of God. A few years ago a distinguished connectional visitor from one of the Eastern Conferences heard him with astonishment. He said, "I did not know there was such a preacher in the Church." The same visitor after extracting from Dr. Carter the admission of his Bible reading habits said, "Now I understand it all." The Semi-Centennial Address as at first planned, never delivered, opens with this sentence: "When I was twenty-five years old I resolved to get into the habit of reading the Holy Scriptures every day and to read that great book consecutively. I have kept in this habit until the present time, and I propose on this occasion to speak of some of the things which I have found in the Book."

This same address contains the great key truths by which he opened the door of every intellectual difficulty. The harmonious action of God in and through nature and history and by the agency of men of surrendered will as well as by the immediate impact of Divine power was to him the great underlying relationship of all things in cosmos. Sin he treated as an awful irruption into these harmonious relations. He is at times almost a Parsee in his vivid realization of the conflict between the powers of darkness and the powers of light. It was to the Bible that he looked with absolute confidence as the authoritative revelation. "God has given this statement and history to men and he seems willing to abide by the results of their promulgation to the world. And of one thing we may be sure—God makes no mistakes!" Such are the closing words of the address. In times of assault at the foundations by methods of destructive criticism we may cry out for a faith founded upon the impregnable rock of Holy Scripture. When shall we practically believe the words of the late Bishop Keener to a class of undergraduates: "You will preach well or ill accordingly as you read your Bible or neglect it. "If the example of our Conference Chrysostom cannot track us this open secret of the preacher's craft, we are hopeless and incorrigible; we have not yet learned the golden A, B, C, of the praise and love and power and profit of the Word of God.

In many passages Dr. Carter declares his confidence in the gaspel as the power of God unto salvation. In his Centenary sermon he remarks upon the psychological law by which conviction upon the part of the speaker begets belief on the part of the hearer. The gospel as a testimony he relied upon as the efficient means of turning men from darkness to light. After hearing a rather sensational discourse the gist of which was the assertion that men had but to pass through an emotional experience resulting from the baptism of the Holy Spirit in order to become great soul winners, I asked him what he thought of it. He replied: "There is nothing in that; it is the truth that saves men." Though not noted for immediate evangelistic efficiency Dr. Carter's preaching effected all the results of true gospel preaching. Saints were edified, sinners were brought to repentance, the consolations and warnings of the gospel abounded, the flock were fed and the church strengthened, while at the same time a winnowing process went on, revealing the hearts of many.

The physical basis of oratory is a matter that no preacher can afford to neglect. Henry Ward Beecher, considering the breadth and variety of his themes and the effects wrought by his sermons and addresses, was the greatest orator America has produced. His scrupulous regard to physical condition and his study of elocution are well known. Dr. Carter had much of the orator's art, though he was of an entirely different temperament and mental conformation from Beecher, and he had assidulously cultivated his voice until it had become a marvel of sweetness and flexibility and power. The musical quality of his speech, so well remembered, robs of surprise the information, possessed by few, that in youth he had been a performer on the cornet and had studied elocution. Until well into middle life he continued to find recreation in playing the flute. He could recite a poem of several stanzas on a single breath, and years after other people had forgotten that he had ever been an amateur musician, he could follow a score with intelligent appreciation. For a preacher he regarded the cultivation of the voice as of importance as great as for a fisherman to look well to his tackle. Neither by acident nor by inheritance had he acquired the exquisite elocution with which he played upon the heart strings of his hearers; his voice never breaking, never becoming inaudible, never hoarse, never beyond control, whatever the exigencies of bad acoustics, whatever the emotional response to his eloquent periods. Even when the passion of self-expression was strongest, even under the unction of the Holy Spirit, he never lost perfect mastery of his powers of utterance.

As I wrote there were before me a number of manuscripts each of which is a specimen of finished workmanship. Some have evidently been rewritten and bear dates much later than of their original composition. The internal evidence shows compression and abridgement, but the originals have been destroyed. Others that are preserved in their original form, bearing memoranda that so identify them, may be the first draughts. If so, they are marvels of correct form—clear, graceful handwriting, scarcely a misspelled word, scarcely an erasure, an ever-present nicety of balance of the sentences, and a compactness in the use of material that show the value of the training he had received; and yet there is none of that meticulous refinement and lack of chasteness of style that one frequently encounters in Munsey.

After the fineness of the workmanship, which strikes us in these manuscripts, one observes that the writer had always his audience in his mind's eye. Such a mental attitude in composition forestals objections to written sermons, except that they exact of the preacher much toil and expenditure of time. It is a method, however, that enabled Dr. Carter to preach with a beauty and fitness of speech that could not offend the strictest taste, with accuracy and conciseness that excluded tediousness and with a force and freedom that came to him with relief from the uncertainties of extemporaneous speech. If he missed those rare bursts of eloquence that come like apocalypses to the extemporaneous speaker, he knew how to make sure of them in advance, fix them on his paper and in his memory and call them forth at will. He memorized his sermons, though not always; sometimes in his regular ministry preaching without written preparation; but whatever his preparation, he appeared always to speak freely. Sometimes his manuscrip was before him, but until his later years, when warned by the calendar, he began to distrust his faithful memory, a hearer would be hardly aware that he had written, much less that he was part of the time reading. In his manuscripts he notes the hymns to be sung, carefully chosen, and the Scripture lessons from the Old and New Testaments. He never supposed that his preaching could be made a substitute for the public reading of the Holy Scriptures in the congregation.

His greatest sermon is, I think, the Centenary Sermon, prepared at request of the Louisiana Conference and preached at Mansfield in 1884. The text is Isa. 60:22—"A little one shall become a thousand and a small one a strong nation. I the Lord will hasten it in his time." The discourse is an examination of the causes of the remarkable growth and influence of Methodism within the century of its ecclesiastical life in America. He says:

"As there is nothing parallel to this in all the records of the past, the question of absorbing interest is, How can this fact be accounted for? If we would understand the meaning of our present position on the theatre of active life—if we would understand the order of God's providence, by which we have been brought to this position—if we would attain a clear conception of those principles which we have inherited and put a proper estimate upon the price of those blessings which have come down to us through the preceding generations, we must gather and weigh the facts of our history and analyze the motives which animated the souls of those men and women whose deeds made the facts of history!"

He theorises that "moral and intellectual forces are never lost and never die. Though they assume different forms and work through various channels, they are living forces working steadily through the ages." "The history of a church is simply the record of the processes by which that church has realized the capacities of its nature as a church and developed its abilities to do the legitimate work of a church; and that process whose ongoings are recorded in the historic page is the resultant of spiritual and intellectual forces."

The analysis and interpretation of these facts and forces is made with both keenness and comprehensiveness. The preacher is master of a wide range of knowledge and has penetrated to the heart of the facts and learned the truth, which he holds with a tenacity of conviction and a joyous, buoyant confidence that give wings to his words and drive them like arrows to their goal." A gentleman who heard the Centenary sermon provided the means for its publication. Unfortunately it is now out of print; a wide reading of it would correct a number of shallow theories by which self-constituted reformers would not only correct the wisdom of the fathers but discredit the testimony of history.

The year before the Centenary Sermon was preached Dr. Carter at an interdenominational celebration of the quadricentennial of the birthday of Martin Luther had delivered an address that shows as full and accurate acquaintance with a wider range of ecclesiastical history as with the history of Methodism, and in which one of his favorite principles—the permanence and vitality of spiritual and intellectual forces acting under ever varying forms—is applied to the interpretation of the Reformation of the XVI. Century. A year earlier he had delivered an address at the anniversary of the Southwestern Bible Society, with astonishing effect upon a most critical and cultivated audience, including most of the Protestant clergy of New Orleans. In this masterpiece of the platform he rings the changes on another of his favorite convictions—that is, that the Bible is the living word because it proceeds from the living God, and has the unique function of leading to God. Let us hear him:

"Whatever subject is presented or suggested by this book; if you take it in hand to follow it carefully and patiently, you will ere long find yourself in the presence of God. Whether it is a book or a chapter or a verse or a line or a word, if you go to the bottom of it you find that God is there. A book whose words and thoughts, whose histories, biographies—whose poetry and philosophy—whose music and eloquence—all point to God! It is not always a complimentary criticism to say that a book is full of its author, but there never was a book so full of its Author as this book."

His enthusiasm for the gospel appears in the concluding paragraph of the same address:

"The whole of it (that is, the message of the Book) has been crowded and packed into one blessed utterance! Do you ask, What is it? Tidings. What sort of tidings? Good tidings! Good tidings of what? Good tidings of great joy! For whom? Good tidings of great joy for all people. What are these good tidings of great joy to all people? 'Unto you is born a Savior, which is Christ the Lord.' All the former dispensations of mercy and grace reached the climax of fulfillment in that word. All the hopes of the individual or of the race for the future are concentrated in that utterance. O then, send it out, this blessed knowledge of a personal Savior. Sow it everywhere, scatter it beside all waters. Strew it in the valleys, spread it along all the hill sides, crown the mountain tops. Here are tidings to man, tidings to the race from God. Tidings of his great Iove, tidings of his helpful hand, tidings of his abundant grace, tidings of his tender sympathy. Send it out in haste. Men are dwellings in the shadows—minds are groping in the darkness—hearts are pining for the light. Deal it out with a liberal hand. Help it to go to the oppressed and the helpless. Bring your gold and frankincense and myrrh and pile them with glad hearts upon the altar. Pile them high that the fire of God may reach the sacrifice, and then the perfume of devoted love to God and sincere benevolence to men will diffuse, itself through the earth and help to bring on the blessed time when men everywhere will rejoice in the abounding and enlarging blessings which flow from an open Bible."

Dr. Carter's sermons had something of the dramatic in them. The conflict waging between darkness and light, between Satan and the Savior, thrills him and calls him to battle, and he sounds a trumpet that others may come to the help of the Lord against the mighty. On the second page of the manuscript of a great sermon preached processes of his discourses:

"The event which we celebrate at this season of the year is the grandest epoch in the history of man. As the stars one by one fade out of sight in the brightness of the sunrise, so every event in human history fades and expires in the effulgence of glory that streams over the world at the rising of the sun of righteousness. This is the opening scene in the drama of human redemption, planned and arranged in the deep counsels of Godhead. It is grand in all its relations and phases—so grand in its conception that we feel that it was originated only in the love of God—so grand in its design, the salvation of a ruined race, that love, ineffable, inexplicable, wonderful love shines out at every point—so grand in its accomplishment that we are forced up to the truth of the statement that 'God was manifest in the flesh'—so wide in its results (throwing wide the blazing portals of the skies that every penitent soul may have abundant entrance) that we must recognize the fact that Christ's great heart yearns for the salvation of sinners."

Occasionally weird, sometimes sensuous imagery, occurs in Dr. Carter's preaching of this period, and recurs in a sermon preached as late as 1905 on the subject "At the Bar of God." But so seldom are these passages met that the late Bishop Ward's remark upon the chastened character of his imagination was entirely just. Self criticism had wrought its perfect work.

The Fraternal Address to the General Conference of the Methodist Episcopal Church, sitting in Philadelphia in 1884, and the address on "Ideals of Manhood," written after his superannuation afford equally great matter for study and quotation. Indeed the richness of the material in Dr. Carter's manuscripts would more than vindicate that perilous experiment of publishing a volume of sermons were even a random collection made for print. But our time does not admit of further study of this interesting subject.

The editorial columns of the New Orleans Christian Advocate also tempt one to linger over things meaty and substantial. Concerning these I must content myself with quotation from Bishop Keener, who said to me after reading one of Dr. Carter's editorials: "You can't buy such articles as that. You can get statistical articles, you can get news articles, you can get articles on all sorts of subjects, but such as this money can't buy."

Dr. Carter preached on great themes—an indispensable condition of great preaching. Here are some of his themes of later years:

"The Power of Love" (1906), "The Destruction of Death," "The Savior of the World," (1907), "Sonship of Believers" (1908), "The Minister's Theme" (1900), "Prayer for the Young" (1912). He believed that preaching is the greatest work that a man can be called to do, and accordingly brought everything—scholarship, talents, physical powers, emotions, spiritual experience and trained industry to bear upon his great work. But he did not fall under the subtle temptation that has mastered some talented men and robbed many a brilliant ministry of its proper fruits. He preached only that souls might be saved, sanctified and put into action that yet other souls might be saved through them. In the Fraternal Address, after a fine analysis of the spiritual condition and growth of Southern Methodism after the Civil War, he says:

"The teaching of the service of his ordination, 'That he will apply himself wholly to this one thing and draw all his cares and studies this way' makes him (the minister) feel that if he entered upon any other work, he would be discrediting the Spirit's call and dishonoring the glory of the work of preaching the gospel and mocking the solemnity of the vow he has taken and staining the escutcheon of the church whose credentials he carries. The true preacher feels like Nehemiah—he is doing a great work, the greatest of all works, when he is proclaiming out of an earnest and believing heart the doctrines of the word of God and showing forth the facts of Christ's redemption. He is carrying on that which his Lord began and he is carrying it on through the influence of the same Spirit. For this reason he cannot come down to other matters and, at the same time, retain the precious consciousness of a Savior's approving presence. That approving presence is his best blessing and his greatest security, and he reads in the last words of Jesus—words uttered when all heaven was astir with preparation to receive and enthrone the glorified humanity of the Son of God—that that presence is promised to those who go and preach."

Dr. Carter was wise in his pastoral methods. He was a stranger to ill-directed activity of the restless mind and undisciplined will that sometimes pass for commendable diligence. The man who declared that he wanted a "hustler" for his pastor would not have appreciated Dr. Carter. But a congregation blessed by his ministry would week by week feed upon spiritual food and have always within their call the counsels of a sage and the frank loving admonitions of a man who bore daily the burden of souls to the altar—a true minister, who for himself. his family, his flock, the Church and the whole world pleaded the one Sacrifice, whereof they have no right to eat who serve at the altar of popular applause; a congregation thus privileged would have occasion to thank Him who "when he ascended up on high gave gifts to men—pastor-teachers for the work of the ministry, until we all come unto the perfect man, unto the measure of the stature of the fulness of Christ." He preserved the balance and dignity of the minister's calling in the homes of the people as in the pulpit. He visited and prayed with the members of his flock, he was the consoler of the bereaved, the minister to the sick, the counsellor of the perplexed, the monitor of the tempted. He was a pastor, not a social functionary of the church. His presence in a home was accompanied with an aroma of heavenly things. At the family altar he talked with God as one accustomed to this holy converse.

Dr. Carter was careful as to his ecclesiastical and conference duties. He loved the brethren, and his pen sketches in the Semi-Centennial Address witness his sincere appreciation of their gifts and graces. His reminiscences prove his interest in the legislative progress of his Church, and though his voice was rarely heard upon the floor of General Conference, his hand did a part in shaping legislation.

He was specially devoted the younger brethren, doubtless thinking that to them he could be most serviceable. While on the train journeying to my second conference session he said to me: "Gerry, come sit by me; I had rather talk to you than those fellows" (referring to certain older men, doubtless more congenial to him and nearer his own class). By whomsoever he might be sought, his quest was the young and the obscure whom he could most help.

Dr. Carter's ministry in his own family must have been charming. It was certainly effective. He writes to a little grandson, giving a delightful account of one of his boyhood experiences of hunting a bear. The following letter written to a son must be given in full as an example of ministerial fidelity in his own family, coupled with appreciation of the minister's calling.

"My Dear ---: A happy New Year to you and the wife and children. I hope and pray that it may be to you and yours the best of all.

"I see by the Advocate that you are to begin next Saturday. (Evidently a round of quarterly conferences.) I want you to begin with a determination that you will put all you have and all you are into your work. You are now in your prime and that fact lays a heavy responsibility upon you. I want you to meet it like a true man, panoplied in the Gospel armor. You have a great office. In spite of all the jokes made about the presiding eldership, it gives the greatest opportunity for great work for the Church and humanity. Get the work on your heart. Fall in love with it. Work as if all depended upon you, pray as if all depended upon God. Expect to succeed. Look constantly for results. Get the optimistic spirit and inspire your preachers and membership with it, and you wil see the pleasure of the Lord prosper in your hands. May the great Spirit—the Administrator of the affairs or redemption—be your constant Companion and your daily Guide."

For himself he asked nothing in the way of ecclesiastical advantage, but was duly appreciative of the unsought honors that came to him. About the conclusion of his first pastorate at Baton Rouge occurred this incident for which I am indebted to Mrs. Peace. He had been solicited to transfer from the Louisiana Conference, and was inclined to do so. My father was his presiding elder and Dr. John C. Keener was Editor of the New Orleans Christian Advocate. Both came up from New Orleans to Baton Rouge by steamboat to interview him about the "call" to St. Louis. Dr. Keener said, 'Charlie, we need you right here in Louisiana. "After some silence," says Mrs. Peace, "my father said, 'All right, Dr. Keener, I will not go.' Then Linus Parker said, 'Let us pray.' Not a word was uttered for several minutes; then those three holy men with one accord repeated the Lord's prayer. I was a small child. little more than five years of age, but it is a memory that will never die." Again Charles W. Carter had followed his Christian principle of self-renunciation for the sake of the gospel. Had he sought great things for himself, he would probably have gained them. When in his later years he was appointed to a work far smaller than for many years he had been accustomed to serve, he would not have been human had he not felt humiliated—humiliated not because of wounded pride, but his great soul suffered; for it seemed as if his ministry had been rejected. There was no reason for it: in every respect, though old, he was at his best. He said nothing, but he felt an inward hurt.

Dr. Carter's old age was green and lovely. His mind was serene, his spirit joyous; his natural force was scarcely abated and his mental powers were unimpaired. He rejoiced in his green old age, especially because in his youth he had been delicate and threatened with tuberculosis. His prolonged life he regarded as an answer to prayer. His step was elastic and his laugh rang like a silver bell. A year before his death he said, "I have had a warning, though I am in excellent health." A slight lesion of the heart had become evident to his physician. Men similarly affected have often outlived their contemporaries. How little it affected him may be seen in this pen picture by his friend Judge Ellis. "Last spring Dr. Carter spent a week or more with me here (in New Orleans) and a few days at my home in Amite City. My children and grandchildren, whom I have taught to love and venerate him, received him so affectionately, and with us he seemed so at home and so happy. In pleasant and mirthful conversation—going over the old and the recent—in devotional service morning and evening, in music and song, in all of which he took the lead, it was a happy season for us all; and in it all he seemed so good and yet so great. On the Sabbath he preached and was at his best. The impression he made on those who met and heard him still remains."

From the same loving pen I quote this characterization. "He was so modest, so forgetful of self, that his greatness is known only to those who knew him intimately. He was among the first of a noble generation of gentlemen, strong men, brave men, true men." These words of the Greek dramatist are as applicable to Dr. Carter in the latter years of his life as if they had been intended to describe him.

"Prosperity attend him, since while passing on Into the vale of man's decline
He yet with newer learning's tint
His mind imbues
And wisdom cultivates. (Clouds, I. 511.)

"If any man keep my words he shall not see death." This promise of the Master was literally fulfilled when Dr. Carter came to the supreme hour, December 30, 1912. He slept but a day before the eve of the New Year; he awoke in a new world and saw the dawning of eternity instead of the beginning of another cycle of the seasons. Simple, unostentatious, yet sublime was his death, as had been his life.

The walls of Sparta's cities were men. The bulwarks and the aggressive strength of Zion are men whom God has filled with his Spirit and who are devoted to his will. As these pass from our ranks our hope is in the genetic power of their life and spirit by which others are raised up to take their places. Under a couldless sky, beneath a wide-spreading oak, on the New Year's Day a year ago, Dr. Carter's pastor, the Rev. R. H. Harper, spoke over his peaceful form these words: "May the God of this man cause his falling mantle to abide on us who look after him heavenward." And this may be our prayer to-night.

MRS. AMANDA BOLTZ.

Mrs. Amanda Boltz (nee Vidler) was born near Fort Jesup, Sabine Parish, La., on October 25, 1856, and departed this life in Shreveport, April 30, 1913, making her at the time of her demise fifty-six years seven months and four days old. She was converted and joined the Methodist Episcopal Church, South, at Rocky Mount in 1876, under the ministry of Rev. J. M. Franklin, who was at that time pastor of the Many Circuit. She was married December 29, 1880, to Rev. H. J. Boltz who has been a member of the Louisiana Conference ever since. This couple lived happily together for over thirty-two years. They were blessed with five children, three of whom preceded her to the glory land. She was truly an itinerant preacher's wife. She never complained nor manifested any dissatisfaction with any appointment that was given her husband by the Conference: some of these appointments were hard places, but she went to them cheerfully, and put forth her best efforts, it being a great pleasure to her to assist her husband in every way that she could in his ministerial work. Indeed, she was a help-meet! There is not any one who will feel her going away so keenly as her husband, who had walked the path of life with her for more than a quarter of a century. Sister Boltz was greatly afflicted at times for a number of years, but she was never any hindrance to the Lord's work, for she was always cheerful and full of sunshine. The writer knew Sister Boltz for thirty years and, with many others, can say that her home was a delightful place to visit. She was always very considerate for the happiness of others, and never burdened them with her troubles. Her highest and chiefest aim was to contribute to the happiness of those around her. At times she suffered intense pain, but she had the Spirit of Christ present with her which enabled her to be cheerful to the end. But she is gone from us, and we shall see her modest face and hear her sweet voice no more in this world. She leaves a husband and two children and a host of friends and relatives to mourn their loss, but we mourn not as those who have no hope. Look up, dear ones; she is not dead but sleepeth, and those who sleep in Jesus will God bring with him. S. S. HOLLADAY.

MRS. BERRY T. CREWS.

Minerva Caroline Keitt, wife of Rev. B. T. Crews of the Louisiana Conference, was born in South Carolina 67 years ago, and died in Shreveport, La., March 4, 1913, at 8 o'clock in the morning. Her family being one of the oldest of her state, of exemplary piety, and before the war having had considerable wealth, she was born into an environment of refinement, taught an orthodox faith, nurtured in unselfish Christian service, and in early life was converted and joined the Methodist Church, and ever after lived an humble life of faith and love. Her husband says of her: "The influence of her parents and the church of her childhood was such as to develop in her a character that she never departed from. She never saw a dance nor attended a circusnever wanted to. She was taught that both were wrong and demoralizing." In 1866, when she was just 21 years of age, she was married to Rev. B. T. Crews, and when in 1878 he joined the itinerant ministry, she too put her heart into the work that he had espoused and made him a faithful and consecrated helper in his high calling, ever seeing that his home was comfortable and a fit place for rest and meditation. She left four daughters, one son, and five grand children, who together with her husband and one daughter-in-law and two sons-in-law, were present when she passed away. After the family, alone in the parlor, had knelt around "the beautiful house she had vacated" and had given it back to him from whom it, with the life it had housed, had come, Rev. R. J. Harp, assisted by Rev. G. E. Cameron, conducted the funeral service in the home, and laid the body to rest in the Greenwood Cemetery in Shreveport.

Both as the pastor's wife in our home town at Mansfield and when itinerating and in various places it has been our good privilege to be guest in Sister Crew's home, and she was ever the same humble, patient, kind, and obliging friend and neighbor, like the Master, who "when he knew that he was come from God and went to God," began to wash his disciple's feet, she was only serving and giving the "cup of cold water in the name of a disciple." Her picture is found in 1 Timothy 5:10 and in Proverbs 31:10-31. She was "well reported of for good works, brought up children, lodged strangers, washed the saints' feet, relieved the afflicted, diligently followed every good work, the heart of her husband safely trusted in her, she worked willingly, with her hands, she brought her food from afar, she gave meat to her household, she girded her arms with strength, her candle went not out by night, she reached forth her hands to the needy, strength and honor were her clothing, in her tongue was the law of kindness, she looked well to the ways of her household, her children rise up and call her blessed; her husband also, and he praiseth her. Give her the fruit of her hands; and let her own works praise her in the gates." She was a devoted wife, a loving mother, a faithful friend, and a child of God. Until the graves give up their dead we bid thee farewell!

MRS. R. W. TUCKER.

Mrs. R. W. Tucker was born May 19, 1864. Her maiden name was Belzara Millican; her childhood was spent amid the gracious influences of a simple but godly home; and the fruits of this early environment were seen in her conversion to Christ in her young girlhood. She at once united with the Methodist Church and all through life remained a consistent and devoted member.

On the 28th day of September, 1882, she was married to Rev. R. W. Tucker, and from then till the day of her passing constantly exhibited the virtues of a true and faithful helpmeet. As mother of five sons and one daughter she found her life's calling in her home, and there day by day through the strong yet subtle influence of Christian example and training, she fulfilled that calling with industry and loving zeal. She adorned the doctrine of God her Savior in the threefold function of wife, of mother, and of friend; and no one could visit the parsonage where Sister Tucker resided and not feel the influence of her truly Christian life.

She was a loyal co-worker with her husband in the ministry of the Gospel; for him and his work she put forth every effort of hand and head and heart. Among the many faithful women who have made the Methodist itinerancy such a power for good Sister Tucker stood in the front rank for loyalty and consecration to her providential portion of the task. The circumstances of her death were doubly sad by reason of the suddenness of her summons. On December 12, 1912, while her husband and sons were in attendance upon the session of the Annual Conference, she was stricken; and despite all that prayer and tender care on the part of friends and loved ones could avail, she passed from us to her Father's house.

The keynote of Sister Tucker's life was devotion, to God, to her home, and to her community. No fitter sentence can be framed to describe her life than the tribute carved upon her tomb.

"She hath done what she could."

SAMFORD BROWN McCUTCHEN.

Samford Brown McCutchen, son of Mark and Pomelia E. (Brown) McCutchen, was born at Columbus, Ga., July 9, 1834. His father was an influential citizen of Georgia, and held a commission as major in the State Militia. The family moved to Louisiana, and settled in Caddo parish, in 1848. In 1862, young Mr. McCutchen enlisted in the Confederate Army, becoming a private in the 27th Louisiana Infantry. He served as a gallant soldier throughout the War. Several times he was promoted for meritorious conduct. He was adjutant-general of General Allen Thomas' Brigade at the time of the final surrender of this command, at Mansfield, La. After the War he returned to Shreveport, and accepted a position on a salary; afterward on his own account began business as a cotton and commission merchant, and later on in general merchandizing. In 1884, he entered into the banking business. He was one of the organizers, and afterward president, of the Commercial National Bank. In 1891, he disposed of his stock in this bank, and organized a private bank. As a business man, he was clear-headed, conservative, and thoroughly honest. He was quite successful, and aside from his banking interests, he owned plantations in Louisiana and Texas, and also city property in Shreveport. He was a public-spirited citizen, and was for twenty-two years a member of the Caddo Public School Board. People had unbounded confidence in the integrity of this man, and many leaned upon him as a wise counsellor and unfailing friend. Early in life he was soundly converted, and at eleven years of age became a member of the Methodist Episcopal Church, South. For fourteen years he was Sunday school superintendent in our First Church, Shreveport; in 1870 he became a steward, which position he continued to hold until he passed into eternal rest, in July 1913. For many years he was Treasurer of the Joint Board of Finance of the Louisiana Conference. He was once at least a member of the General Conference of our Church. He was always deeply interested in the Church-not only at home, but abroad. He was habitually a regular and liberal giver to the Church—he led others in giving. His was a most lovable character. His life was full of sweetness and purity. He was dignified but tender and sympathetic, gentle but strong, modest but brave. His piety was deep and uniform. He was truly large-hearted and Catholic in spirit, but dearly as his own life he loved the doctrines and polity of his own Church. He was happy in his home. In December, 1869, he was married to Amelia, daughter of Judge Joseph M. Ford of Caddo parish. She was indeed an elect woman. She passed from earth in August, 1909. Four children remain to cherish the memory and emulate the FELIX R. HILL. example of their godly parents.

MRS. ROBERT J. HARP.

Agnes Worthington Penniston was born in Princetown, Indiana, October 23, 1843. She was married to Rev. Robert J. Harp, Sept. 23, 1869, and entered into everlasting life June 10, 1913. She was indeed well-born—the daughter of parents of high character and culture. Her father was Dr. John J. Pennington of Mechlenburg, Va., a prominent physician and surgeon of his day. His mother was Elizabeth Sneethen, a woman of great intellectuality, and a member of one of the oldest and most representative families of Maryland. Her grandfather was Rev. Nicholas C. Sneethen, a great Methodist preacher. Of Mr. Sneethen, Bishop Asbury often said, "he is the silver trumpet of Methodism." Rev. Walter Pennington of Mechlenburg, Va., was Mrs. Harp's paternal grandfather. He was an earnest, devoted, pioneer preacher, and possessed a good worldly estate. His spacious home was always open for church services, and upon his plantation many gracious, old-time camp meetings were held. Thus from both sides of the family there came to Agnes Pennington a precious inheritance of all that could contribute toward making a model womanhood. From the endearments of such a home there came forth influences to bless and sanctify a long and useful life, in the years that were to come.

From early girlhood, Miss Pennington was an enthusiastic lover and student of music and painting. It was while she was studying art and residing with her uncle,

Mr. N. C. Sneethen in New Orleans that she met Rev. Robert J. Harp, at that time pastor of Moreau Street Church. In due time, they were married at the home of her father, who was then living in Evansville, Indiana. This happy event occurred Sept. 23, 1869. Here it may be stated that members of her own household did not look with favor upon this marriage to a "Methodist preacher." Even her own brothers, while admiring Mr. Harp, did not think it best or wise that the lively, talented and fun-loving young lady should even consider a life-union with an itinerant minister. Others beside the family no doubt entertained the same view; but they were mistaken. Benéath the exterior that seemed ever bubbling with gayety and sallies of wit, there were ever-flowing currents of pure devotion to God; and along with these, there were the qualities of undaunted courage, an iron will and indomitable spirit, inherited from a long line of noble ancestors. From the very beginning the marriage-union was a blessed and happy one. To her devoted husband, Mrs. Harp was a true comrade and helpmate. She was actively interested in every good word and work. She was not only a persistent, but intelligent worker. She was an excellent teacher in the Sunday school. She was a faithful and untiring member of the Woman's Missionary Societies. She was deeply interested in the work of the Woman's Christian Temperance Union; and she was a charter member of the first society formed in New Orleans. She was, of course, a regular attendant on all the services of her church, and loved to participate in the privileges of the old-fashioned Methodist class-meeting. She had a tender, loving heart. Her ear was never deaf to the cry of distress. Even when her own need was great, she was never indifferent to calls for charity. Her husband, called by the Church, was for a number of years in charge of the Book Agency at New Orleans. When, because of the embarrassed state of the Nashville House, the New Orleans house was closed, entailing upon Brother Harp new losses and burdens, this good woman proved her nobleness of character, helping her husband and little ones by teaching music and painting, and by keeping boarders. While Brother Harp published and edited "The Independent," she helped him with her pen and even read the proofs, while he was busy with more pressing burdens. For many years afterward, while he served the Church in the regular work, she was his untiring helper, and wherever they labored, this queenly woman left evidences of her exalted Christian character and enduring influences for good.

The writer of this sketch knew her well and greatly honored her, since he was her pastor, first in New Orleans, and after many years in Shreveport. He devoutly thanks God that he ever learned to know this dear servant of the Church, and to enjoy so long her confidence and friendship. He conducted the funeral services and helped to lay her away in the beautiful Cemetery at Shreveport, June 11, 1913. Her last days on earth were marked by the same faith and peace that had sustained her through life. She is not forgotten. Really, such a woman never dies. She lives on and her works follow her. Her venerable husband still lingers here, but it will not be long, she will soon welcome him in paradise. Her children and grandchildren lovingly cherish her memory, and call her blessed. The Church she loved and served so long, honors her name. She is now forever with her Lord. It is all well.

LWORTH

Testimonial From A Lady of Experience in School Work.

During the past twenty years I have been connected with the faculties of six of the best colleges of the South, and during the time I resided in the schools. For several years I was Lady Principal of the institution with which I was connected, and so consider myself well prepared to judge of what a school should be.

I can say without mental reservation that "WHITWORTH" compares most favorably, in every respect, with any of the schools of which I have spoken. I wish especially to commend the "WHITWORTH" faculty, which I believe is unexcelled by any in this section of the country. The atmosphere of both the religious and social life of "WHITWORTH" is exceptionally fine. The school is a "home" for girls in the best and truest sense of of the country. The a is exceptionally fine. Twhat a home should be.

It affords me great pleasure to recommend Whitworth College.

December 13th, 1913.
